

ABSTRACT

Migration of radioactive materials from a pressure vessel to a steam system in a nuclear power plant is suppressed by using a dryer (3) provided with corrugated plates (22) 5 having surfaces coated with an inorganic ion-exchange material stable under a condition in which high-temperature water exist, such as  $\text{TiO}_2$ .

1957-3-27-1050